The sky belongs to every eye, and if it likes, each and every one, can view the moon entirely, the stars, the comets and the sun.

*Every eye can view everything and nothing is ever lacking there:
the last one who looks at the sky
does not find it less shining.*

So please explain to me, in prose or even verses, why the sky is only one and the Earth is all in pieces

“WHY THE SKY ABOVE BELONGS TO EVERYONE, AND THE EARTH BELOW DOESN'T?”

The Sky Belongs to every Eye and if it likes, each and every one, can view the moon entirely, the stars, the comets and the Sun.

Every eye can view everything
and nothing is ever lacking there.
The last one who looks at the Sky
does not find it less shining.
So please do justice to me in prose and verses, Why the sky is not only one and the earth is not all in pieces.
